Celebrity worship is a problem. You should never be idolizing other humans. If something major happens that needs your immediate attention such as a celebrity shooting people on your street, yes, but how often does this happen? Why do you need to know that Charlie Sheen has HIV or that Will Smith slapped Chris Rock? You don't. A plutocrat with billions of federal debt credits in his household while people that provide it for him are slaving at factories for basic needs? You do. I am not the ultimate say so in what you shall think (like the politicians and the religious demand) but I offer my shoulds from seeing human suffering, recognizing actual physical solutions, and recognizing the distractions pushed on us to keep it going – because for corporations and the state, our suffering is lucrative. Very few celebrities are panhandling. Well, not in the stand on the corner sense of the word. You know who focuses so hard on their outward appearance? People that are lost inside and want so desperately to be accepted that they will spend wages...fucking paychecks on altering their bodies. Not just celebrities but those that worship them. You have people slaving in factories making unnecessary plastic shit, slaving in restaurants mass producing/wasting food, and these people get paid more than an hourly employee could make in their life, to walk around on camera and repeat things. I love to listen to music by Mudvayne. I do not wear shirts, hats, or shoes with Mudvayne on it (unless by chance the article of clothing was discarded by someone else). I do not focus on the inner workings and goings on of their personal lives. To strive to be adored and revered by others is a ridiculous concept. Yes, we as humans have a need to feel accepted, but this is in such excess that it makes them human deities to many.

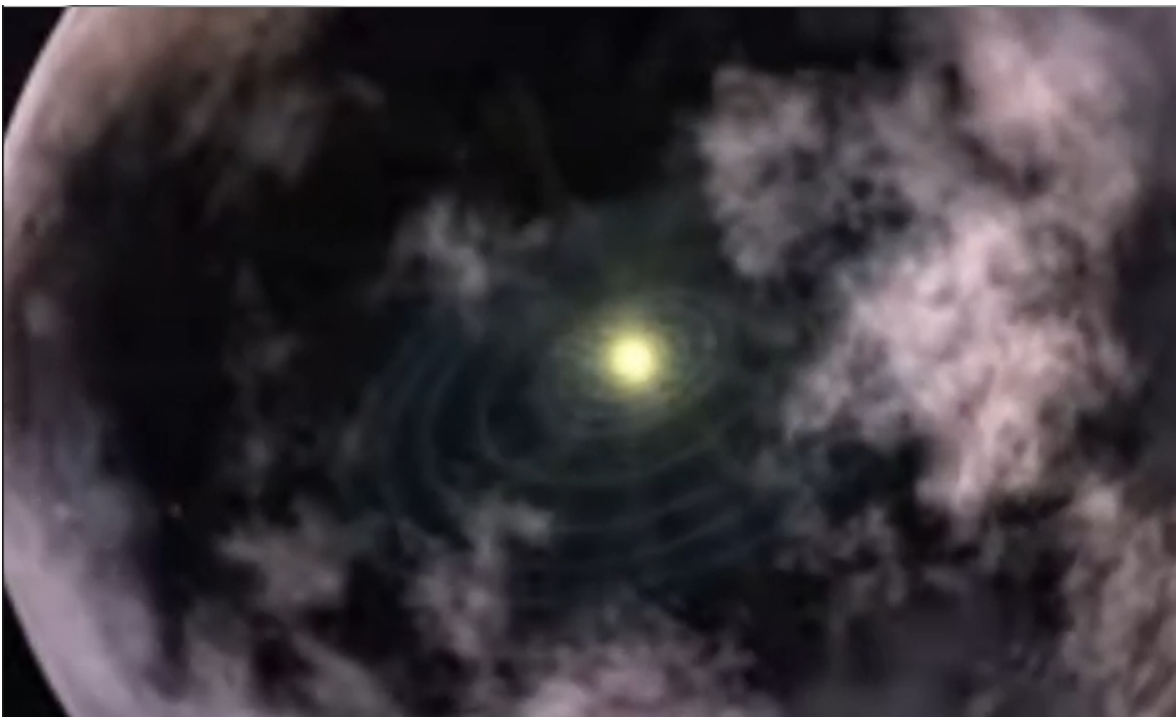

Sports are bread and circuses for the slaves. The Colosseum is now the Astrodome, Fenway Park, Madison Square Garden, Indy Motor Speedway, Lambeau Field, etc. If you see someone with sports team logos on their clothes – you have encountered a slave in the wild.

The U2 singer flew his hat from London to Italy for $1700. You read that correctly. His hat. The EPA politician celebrities spent $1560 on 12 customized fountain pens. Politicians throw themselves $100million dollar parades. Other celebrities spend $43million on a vase. Post Malone handed over $2million for a single Magic the Gathering card. If they gave a single ounce of a fuck about anyone but themselves and people like you didn't give them so much power, these things would not happen.

Most people have an extremely difficult time viewing their environment correctly, so here is a picture:

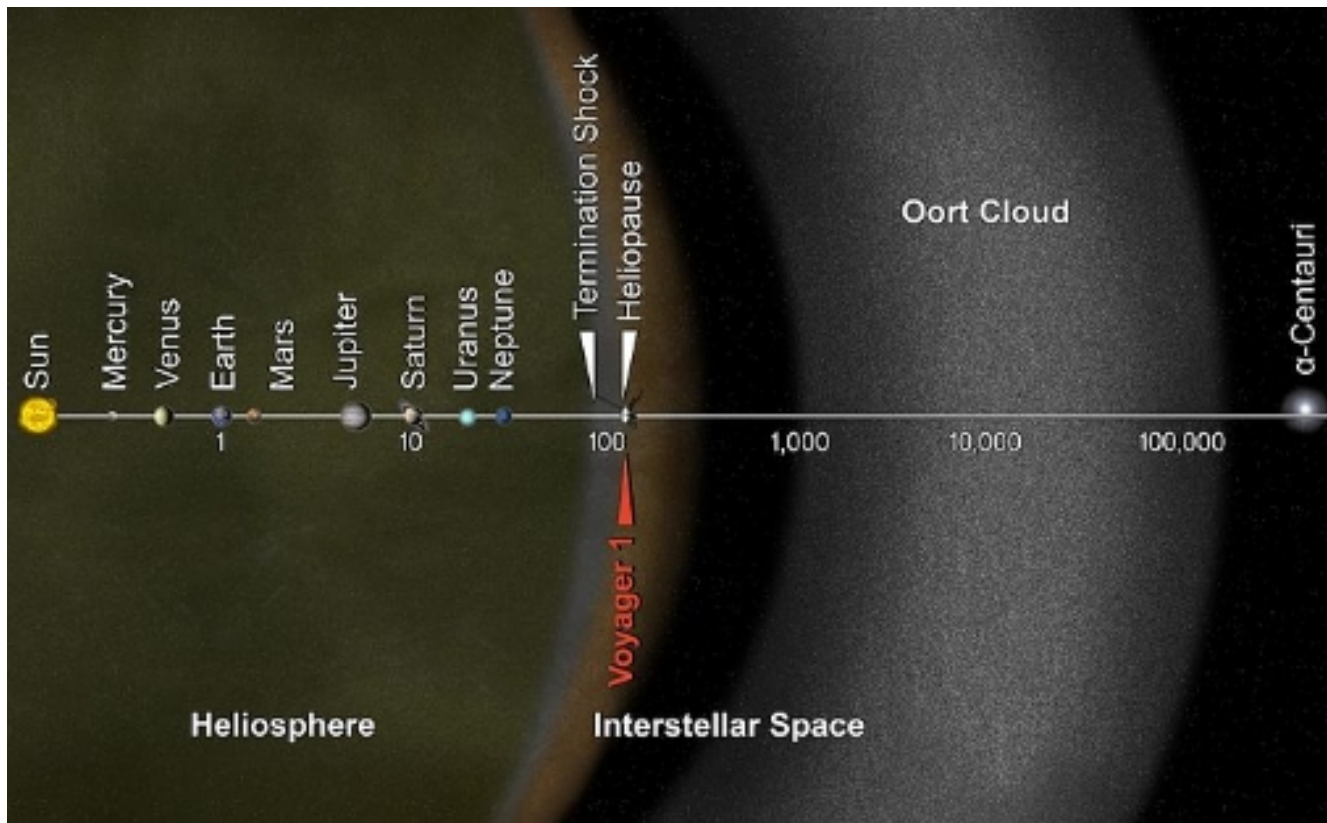

What is that you might ask? That is our solar system inside the heliosphere before the Oort Cloud. Past that sphere barrier that is formed by colliding forces, and past the Oort Cloud is interstellar space where you will find Alpha Centauri, etc. We are trapped inside this. On one planet doing laps and rotating, in one solar system spinning, in one galaxy spinning. I agree with multiple universes, but not multiple realities. We cannot logically be the center of existence. There is too much other life, too many other species, and forms of intelligence. There are too many unknowns and too much suffering of many species to claim we are what life is about. That's a lot of astro units to Alpha Centauri. There is a lot of unknown outside Oort. To claim a deity created us is to also claim it is apathetic and/or sadistic. What is the purpose of our Heliosphere of distant suffering? I have only been able to come up with two ideas. The first: We are forcibly here to generate some kind of power/energy/result for something much larger that our physical universe is connected to(as in the universe is a single cell of some larger object). Voyager 1/2 is like humanity in its first attempts to colonize like the virus it is.

The second: We exist as beings that had no physical body and we created an environment for ourselves to inject into so that we can feel. Joy, pain. Pleasure. Suffering. A sort of derivative of the simulation argument <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=buWKH66OhhQ>.

I'm probably wrong but I think both are much more plausible than a zombie being born to a virgin, walking on water, generating food from nothing, and zombying out AGAIN in the future at some point.

Considering the planetary crisis we face caused by the Industrial Beast, we need to come together as existing beings and learn to co-habitate without constantly trying to exploit and control others. Stop fearing everything and everyone just because rich people told you to do so. The number of actual monsters doesn't justify the obscene authority and exploitation of the lower class by politicians and police. In fact, the system provides a revenue generating environment where monsters have room to fester. Don't make it easy for the corporate state to track you or hold any kind of power over you unless you fuck children, then find a rope. The politicians and police know laws are for social control but the lower classes sincerely believe that American laws will stop human depravity, instead of also creating its own depravities. Though I say American, any country that has a socioeconomic system (even the poorest African countries etc) uses the same socially oppressive control tactics to keep the poor clocking in for things they do not need, while they hate each other and compete for basic needs. If all of us were able to completely refuse to participate in their numbers racket and our own exploitation, they would be completely powerless. Remember, although they have conditioned many people to think it is impossible to survive without them, we still hold all the real power because they depend on us for all their manual labor and work, so if we teach ourselves how to survive on our own and refuse to participate, we become free.

- Refuse to use bank accounts, credit cards, checks. Do not go into debt, do not obtain loans. The state bails out banks and forces families to bail out their loved ones.

- Refuse to drive a car except a trip once a month for goods. Most destinations are only 'necessary' so you can afford to keep clocking in or keep yourself sedated with shopping, food, or entertainment while you keep clocking in. Learn to grow your own food, obtain/purify your own water, sew/mend your own clothes, and abandon your chemical dependencies. Don't be afraid of the planet. We do not have to return to the stone age either. The 'economy' is a pyramid scheme and will crash. The rich will ride it until the wheels fall off, leaving the competing poor to suffer its collapse.

- Self-defense & security are necessary but should not be most of your existence. Fear is lucrative for those pushing it.

It is the obligation of haxkers that have a conscience to use their skills against that which is rapidly consuming everything(that sustains us) in its path. We could be developing agricultural and housing solutions that do not exploit people or the planet i.e. Solein and houses made from tires/plastic. Simply making resources available to the poor(not just food pantry donations) on this planet can be a life-changing act. The Corporate Construct is NOT sustainable, anyway. Fortunately, it does not take much to deal crippling blows against the machinery of it. Just by refusing to participate, you withdraw your consent. Unfortunately, many people are in love with and will kill/die for their corporate snacks, corporate law, corporate/nationalist symbolism, corporate celebrities, and other matrix-bound garbage. The most shining example are those stupid rednecks in trucks with flags flying out the back. Neo, Morpheus, and the woman in the red dress. Until everyone else stops supporting the machine, it will continue eating up everything in its path ('manifest destiny') and keep others involuntarily bound to it. Why would so many people struggle to break free from a 'free' country? According to flag-worshipers/bootlickers, anyone that challenges the system must have some sort of mental malfunction, when in reality all humans have some form of mental health issue and the people that let what's popular decide things for them have the more serious one. Those people group up to hurt others. People that group up behind nationalism/race/religion usually cause substantial suffering to innocent people. I was put onto HTZ when in middle school. The anti-copyright is fantastic because it allowed me to reword...almost all of it. My haxks are public [sixie6e], my books are freely available, and in my daily existence I do whatever causes the least amount of suffering even to the smallest life. Stealing from those exploited by the state(or other corporations) is not honorable or justifiable even to 'pay bills'. Find another way. Start valuing life and the suffering of others or we won't make it. You should be valuing small life AND resisting bullies. I do not condone theft but if you are absolutely forced into stealing, do not target people, other victims of the system.

Research Bonobos and the Chimpanzees. They were separated around 1 million years ago and only the Chimpanzees had to compete for basic needs. That led to serious violence, war parties, tribal violence, etc. The Bonobos? Peaceful.

I am not a socialist or communist just because American police are fascist. I don't view life or existence in socioeconomic terms, especially 1940s and Cold War leftovers. I just often have to explain the customer consumers' paracosm to them in their terms. I am not Antifa, I am not affiliated with Anonymous, I am not affiliated with Hackbloc, though I have always loved the general concept of that section of HTZ7. I do my own work without Burp/ZAP. Groups/gangs are for the fearful or power-hungry, neither of which are for me.

American police ARE fascist. Hard. "a political philosophy, movement, or regime (such as that of the Fascisti) that exalts nation and often race above the individual and that stands for a centralized autocratic government headed by a dictatorial leader, severe economic and social regimentation, and forcible suppression of opposition". A group of dictators is still a dictatorship. Communists engage in similar behavior. Boiling humans down to socioeconomic commodities. History tells us where that leads and what that means for society. Name one that doesn't swear fealty to the nationalist cloth. Fascism and communism both are sets of ideologies and practices that seek to place the nation, defined in exclusive biological, cultural, and/or historical terms, above all other sources of loyalty, and to create a mobilized national community. People die in horrible ways at the hands of #1776heads - Democrats and Republicans are both nationalist gangs though both try to claim the other is. Both sides agree and understand that fascism is 'bad' but they don't see how they are each begging for it behind their bald eagles, blue stripes, and blind loyalty. We have 5% of the world's population and 20% of the world's number of incarcerated people. The American 'crime' industry generates more revenue than the combined GDP of 133 countries. The entire world is apathetically aware of America's police problem.

In this society there are people that:

- Eat their scabs.
- Lick butts.
- Have sex with children/animals.
- Place things in their urethra.
- Waste resources doing unnecessary things like cutting grass, racing engines, putting up christmas lights, participating in holidays every month, buying, buying, buying.
- 'Drink' coffee through their butts.
- Neglect the animals that live with them.
- Intentionally run over turtles.
- Destroy forests and landscapes.
- Think the earth is flat.

- Think that a zombie was born to a virgin, walked on water, and generated food from nothing.
- Think certain groups of people are inferior for things they cannot help.

Then they go vote for[beg] some rich master use police to force you to exist as they do in their socioeconomic environment. But yeah, I'm the problem telling you to stop thinking so socially and environmentally destructively.

Most Americans are truly intellectually defective. Side note: Hating gay people is prejudice. Being gay is not a choice. Licking the fecal orifice is a disgusting choice which straight people often do. Calling a gay person a sodomite is disrespectful, dehumanizing and you deserve a severe punch in the jaw. Calling a child predator a rapo is not disrespectful. Calling a gay person a child predator is disrespectful but more than that – it is dehumanizing, false, and intended only to push fear and hate.

- Stop mass farming animals. ~40% of our food goes to feed food we don't need. We also throw away ~40% of our edible food.
- Stop indoor growing cannabis(that one is hard for me to let go of but necessary).
- Stop junkmail.
- Take the plastic/rubber and make houses with it instead of using trees.
- There are more empty homes than homeless. These buildings need to be used to house the homeless. Similarly, we could revise the land structure in this nationalist shithole so that every family has 4 acres to live on, to garden. Even if they don't want to work for your corporations. Stop placing your slave labor above existence and trying to force it on others.
- Build an outhouse over a septic tank and dig a well. This eliminates plumbing and reliance on corporate state water.
- Stop eating so much, fucking fat ass. Stop eating meat. If you think vegetarians have no strength or energy...two words: Shaolin Monks.
- Drink more water, stop drinking/consuming sugar. The cane labor is repulsive. Aspartame will only cause cancer if you drink 50+ cans of diet coke a day, you would die of overhydration or hyponatremia or first.

- Stop begging rich masters to use their police to solve your social issues.
- If you see someone suffering, see how you can help. It's usually inconvenient. Get over it.
- Treat smaller life as the fragile existence it is. Just because you are afraid of everything in your environment doesn't mean everything has to die.
- Abandon your dependency on corporate chemicals. I am still battling mine. Drugs eat away your will to resist. I am no better than a heroin/meth/crack addict just because my chemicals are from Pfizer or Johnson & Johnson.
- Stop driving. Most trips are unnecessary and only to further the pockets of the wealthy. You don't need all those things you are buying, using, consuming, and discarding. Also, vehicles are a corporate state racket. Gas, insurance, registration, repairs, speeding tickets[the first one was in 1904 it doesn't stop speeding, it just generates police revenue from it].
- Stop mowing lawns. It kills small life, wastes gas, and is slave behavior for appearances only.

Anyone that guarantees you that something is 100% secure is lying. No ifs, ands, or customer butts about it. Here are my 'credentials':

LL - admin db creds

grady county detention center - root on inmate kiosk

solaredge - htaccess bypass

cal state - admin creds

medusoft - admin db creds

university of texas - broken access control

clinica_provida - admin db creds university at buffalo - broken access control bioinformatics dot org - database dump

gop iraq - admin db creds university of oklahoma - broken access control

Responsible disclosure is a moral mindfuck, however. White hats exploit people through their corporations and governments. Black hats exploit people directly. I, as an ecohat, prevent users from being exploited by...disgustingly...protecting the corporations that hold their data, but doing so without collecting revenue for it.

I would love to erase everyone's debt chains but 2 issues with this. 1) Society is so conditioned that people would just use the clean slate to go right back into debt again and 2) the data is so dispersed and backed up with backups of backed up back ups that it is almost impossible. If not impossible, certainly above my ability. It is however within your ability. If you stop buying, stop clocking in for the Corporate Construct and refuse to acknowledge corporate debts – this would ultimately be more successful because someone haxking the state debt agencies and clearing everything would only last for a brief time. People would use the clean slate to go into debt again. The United States owes other nations debts that are paid for using your labor as collateral. The United States is a corporation that has much smaller corporations under its umbrella. I am not a beast haxker I just have a decent understanding of systems, social and network.

Haxking is simply finding another way to do something. Usually outside of its intended function.

Linux vs Microsoft Windows vs BSD vs iShit shows to me that though we are all forced to operate within a box, we don't have to operate the same. America vs China vs Russia vs Korea vs Iran vs Iraq. Just because they exist differently does not mean they are wrong or bad. If they exploit and oppress and try to force the way they exist on everyone else, then it is a problem. It should not be, "Country x did a corrupt thing to country y, so the people of country z and a and i "stand with" their governments against the government of country x when the governments of countries z, a, and i are doing many of the same things and to their own citizens!" It should be, "Country x did a corrupt thing to country y, so other humans on this planet that know what it is to suffer unjustly[and don't want it to happen to others] stop it when they see it and stop participating in the root causes:

- nationalism
- resource competition[basic needs held hostage for corporate manual labor for our entire existence]
- celebrity/politician/master worship
- social division based on things people cannot help[gender, race, place of birth, family]
- holidays
- making multiple copies of themselves
- the lottery[the state took over the mafia's number racket]
- wars created by the rich and wars behind symbolism, nationalism, religion, etc!"

Humans in this pampered, entitled corporate shithole would have to haxk themselves. That is too much intellectual work, introspection. Also, corporations have conditioned them to think they are correct no matter what because they have some federal debt credits to hand over. This American existence is not sustainable and the oligarchs/plutocrats will ride it until the wheels fall off, leaving their enforcers to manage to filth that is the general public. The cheap labor, the tools. While they act like they are helping by virtue signaling with Ukrainian flags.

You are worth more than the state and other corporations give you permission to be. Being a spending customer/consumer/slave is not worth anything at all. The advancements we could have were fast food employees allowed to focus all that energy they spend bowing and scraping on energy solutions. Just because they are also forced to slave for a massa doesn't mean they are stupid. If they defend it, they are stupid. Please, stop the uncle tomfoolery.

Here is how I haxed a Federal Detention Center:

The inmate kiosks use a restricted ThinBuntu operating system. The system was setup so that when the kiosk loaded, it booted directly into a Firefox add-on (Modern Kiosk or something similar I don't remember). Inmates could not access any part of Firefox or the Desktop. Using HTML injection I was able to bypass the Firefox restrictions and access the desktop and the root folder.

1. After logging in as yourself[inmate] click on Law Library.
2. In the Fast Case search box turn the query to a link that refers to the SSL enabled site (the domain suggests local *.sjm (smartjailmail)) like so:

`random_text`
3. Click the link that shows up in the results.
4. A button that says "Get me out of here" appears. Click it.
5. A fresh Firefox page loads. At the bottom, click Extensions.
6. Disable the add-on that limits the menu/tool bars.
7. Click Restart Firefox.
8. Under customize, there is an 'Open file...' button. This accessed the root folder and opened any filetype supported by Firefox.

When haxking, as mentioned in the first paragraph of this section, areas for user input are good places to try things. For example, the basic SQL injection – enter a single ' and see what happens. There is also Javascript injection. Try to get error messages. Often they lead you further down the path to access.

My favorite methodology is probably finding admin/user creds by utilizing vulnerable files such as *.ini, *.config, *.env, *.sql etc and finding directory traversal attacks. These are great because many sites prevent scanning. Most people do not want to sit and type each possible directory and each variation of each possible sec file in the URL bar in hopes of landing on one. Bug Bounty hunters with XSS after XSS after XSS[Cross Site Scripting] bugs are not haxkers. They copy the line:

<script>alert("XSS")</script>

and then fill in the blanks of the online form at HackerOne or BugCrowd. I absolutely REFUSE. I did one when I first started bounties a couple years ago but when I saw exactly what it is and the number of reports, etc – no. It's like using Burp or Zap. It's pressing play.

Many sites offer bounty programs so you can haxk with safe harbor(they won't prosecute) but they are really only worthwhile for people that either need the credentials, need to learn, or just enjoy doing red team work for pats on the back.

NCNNV02

The American 'crime' & prison 'industry' generates more revenue than the combined GDP of 133 countries. When you cannot go a mile down an American street without seeing an American flag post to post to post to post - either America is full remedial nationalist or everyone has Alzheimer's and needs a constant reminder of where they are. Any society that begs masters(especially wealthy ones) to solve social issues with their police ends up an authoritarian shithole with half the population coward and cowering behind the state. Anyone that stands up for themselves or others becomes a criminal along with the other half of the population that hasn't tatted their bodies up with ridiculous 1776heads' symbolism:

Every militant system enforcer I have talked to except for one, has adamantly declared that they do not have time to read books. Another claimed to look forward to reading the Book of Death (refer to my previous writings for refutations to attacks on my character and morality of my choices) but I do not know if he has or not. I am out on bail for resisting nationalist enforcers at the exploitative traffic stops of others and a condition of that bail is that law enforcement has a protective order against me. I cannot contact the militant system enforcer to see if he has read it. This might be a part of society's problem as police come from society. When you only read law words, then much like the religious only reading their preferred religious text, those words become all you know when in reality there is an entire library of intellect available. The recycled brown shirts should really stop arresting and start reading. You might see some positive change, just not in master's revenue books.

Without police enforcing this system of 'come in after and clean up for politician image and career points', child predators/killers wouldn't be so comfortable knowing they just have to cover their tracks and get away from the area. Robbers and thieves (excluding kleptos) wouldn't be an issue because we wouldn't be competing and struggling for basic needs while the oligarchs and plutocrats live in million dollar mansions and throw themselves $100 million dollar parades.

You know who wants to control language by begging master to use their jackboot police? Fascists and communists. If you boil them down, they are both a militant regime that oppresses the lower classes, keeps them divided, and forces them to compete for basic needs. Control is exerted with manipulation, deception, or fear and ultimately when those fail (or even sometimes when they don't) - force. If you can manipulate a population or deceive them into compliance, then force is not required. If your children are fighting each other they will rely on you for authoritarian intervention. Then, with your interventions, you develop a pattern that the children learn to manipulate in return for snacks and privileges. You get control, they get entertainment in between their work hours. You are raising children, not adults. You are raising corporate debt slaves, not free thinking beings. This section is copied from the aforementioned Book of Death because it is necessary:

When I say crime, I mean actual crime. Actions by one entity that cause genuine suffering to another. I do not mean the current, arbitrary wording by rich politicians that keep the lower classes divided. I mean things that hurt. Home invasions, actual rapes, homicides, kidnappings. Two consenting adults in a fist fight? No. An adult in his home doing lines of cocaine with no non-users, children, or involuntary people present? No. [Addicts are a product of the system, treating them as criminals does not work. Or haven't you noticed?] The people forcing the poor to manufacture that cocaine in toxic environments? Yes. A person not paying the state before driving their own vehicle? No. A person hurts an animal that isn't attacking them? Yes. Under this fascist, American regime you get more prison time for a gram of meth than you do for supergluing a dog's eyelids shut or forcing your dick into a child's body. Actual crime. Things that hurt. This is going to be automatically rejected at first but just read me out - crime stops with compassion, forgiveness, and understanding.

Compassion - If someone steals $20 from you, are you really going to call the police? Why? So you can have their family pay the state, Securus, and Tiger/Aramark crazy money? That's really fair isn't it? Stealing isn't okay but also, it wouldn't be a thing if we weren't forced to compete for resources would it? Do you call the police so you can label someone a thief with a badge, seal, and paperwork backing it? I don't think a person should be stolen from. I also don't think the police should be pocket checking peasants for potatoes:

<https://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/text/18/981>

Forgiveness - Justice is a lucrative misnomer for state sanctioned vengeance. Every time someone seeks revenge, the state calls it justice and the Treasury calls it business. If you forgive them that $20 theft and priceless violation of resource competition rules, you'll find that not only do you not rage at them, but you might feel better having helped someone who needed it. If someone is struggling internally (within reason) and you beat them up for how they behave because of that internal warfare, that is not going to help the person grow and develop. Is that not that ultimate goal for individuals and the abstract concept we call society? Or is it to get as much material shit as you can, stiff arm anyone else, tackle them, call foul, and anything else to 'win' the 'never-ending game'? Is it cry about your McDonald's order with the same intensity as if the cashier broke into your house? Is it trade unnecessary shit with people and mass consume until you die?

Understanding - In order to have compassion and forgive, it helps to understand. Some people don't like conflict or feel sorry for the person so they opt for forgiveness but if you hide behind flags, you don't have understanding. Of others. Of yourself. Of your environment. The state profits heavily in revenue and social order every single time someone calls the cops for something trivial and small. Handle your own disputes. The amount of money you spend on garbage, is it not worth $200 to find out someone is struggling and you can help them? I could argue that is cheap to know to not let someone back into your home, and refusing them entrance is justified. However, that is not how I think or feel. If someone stole from me, I am going to figure out why. That is most important. That means that I have somehow made them afraid of asking for something that is severe enough to risk the social relationship. They could also be ridiculously prideful and it isn't my fault, but I am so outspoken on unnecessary shit, that if they are in debt for unnecessary shit, that might make them not ask me and instead feel their only option is to steal from me. This is assuming I have $200 on hand which is never the case.

This triumvirate of dismantling social division and corporate/state control is realistic, if enough people were to adopt it and reject begging a politician to have their enforcers send the person you don't like through the system. Getting them to abandon their gang symbolism to care for strangers they have been taught to fear, though? Difficult. Not impossible, therefore realistic. It might take even more death carried out by their masters behind their symbolism.

In a society of resource competition i.e. basic needs held hostage for cheap, long-term labor, the competition is not going to work together except to further self in some way. They will paint an office building that doesn't require it because if they don't, massa won't give them federal debt credits to trade with the other labor anymore. Massa has all sorts of ways to make their slaves submit. Usually it involves family and survival. You will not be able to provide for your offspring or yourself if you do not do as massa commands and conform socially to the behavior of the other slaves. This is a dehumanizing, miserable, and purposeless existence. A society with excess basic needs where many still go without them. Yeah, that's the recipe for a healthy society. People cannot seem to escape the 1920s, 40s, and Cold War leftovers of Fascism vs Communism. If you think everyone should eat you become a Communist, Socialist, Marxist, etc. If you think Communism is garbage, you become a Fascist. Reinhard Gehlen did his work and did it fucking well. Divide and conquer works well still and it isn't just one division. There are religious, gender, class, political divisions, and many more. Everyone against everyone else leaves everyone forced to defer to massa for judgment, permission, and authority. Freedom of religion is freedom to choose your own chains. Freedom. Americans and their precious 'freedom'. A subjective term. RATM was correct. "The land of the free? Whoever told you that is your enemy!" If you think that snacks and Xboxes are freedom, then you don't understand what it means to be free. Stop calling yourself free and start calling yourself comfortable. You are able to move around, but only within the confines of the construct. Confines and boundaries are not freedom, but incarceration. Many people have a belief that humans are inherently evil. I used to think this also. Then I learned that most monsters are created by the system and provided room to fester. The layers of faces (we show different ones and behave differently in different social environments) of self can be peeled away once you stop trying to be a business/corporate slave on a planet of life. Without economy, you would still survive. It just wouldn't be with excess. Everything you ever bought, right now, is somewhere. There is no away. Your survival also would be without the basic needs exploitation capitalized on by both fascist and communist regimes. Basic needs would and should be separate from the paracosm, the pyramid scheme called the 'economy' (that you pay into with your purposeless labor).

How can you attribute work to work that was not done by thermodynamic law for thermodynamic sustenance? You can't, only in imaginary land. Here's some corporate shitheads in that imaginary land:

"I 'invested' x federal debt credits in mini-pyramid scheme y and 'gained' z more federal debt credits than I 'invested'! It was a year later, but in the meantime the government had my federal debt credits to play with! I wouldn't get them back but hey, it's for the flag, right? Or maybe those freedoms we talked about!"

"I sat at my cubicle and typed in master's digits all day, I obtained more food than I could ever produce in that time if someone else didn't do the manual labor!"

"I repeat words, get filmed doing it, and obtain more federal debt credits in a year than people working in a factory could in decades of manual labor!"

"I care for caged wildlife so that my masters can profit heavily from misery!"

"If you don't clock in for master, you aren't a real man!"

"If you don't clock in for master, you aren't an independent woman!"

"If you don't work, you don't eat, you don't grind, you don't shine."

Okay, let's unpack that last one. First of all, Mike Jones is garbage. That was part or all of his rap album. He took the same phrases and repeated them over and over and over. Imagine growing up in super xenophobic, pro-boot ass Texas being black and your idols are telling you to aspire to what master wants you to be. Mike Jones is an Uncle Tom. Master requires social division to maintain authority and they have tools to do so:

- Money
- Casual Sex
- Cars/Clothes
- Drugs
- Violence behind all of the above

Mike Jones is not unique. Celebrities push all of them. Most celebrities don't push violence behind those things, but those things are the system and most celebrities are more than willing to let police do the violence enforcing it. Celebrities are not your friends. Famous people are not always celebrities. You can be famous without being a celebrity. You should not be deifying other humans. David Mitchell is one of the most hilarious people to me. If I saw David Mitchell in a confrontational situation with someone I did not know, I am not going to side with David because he is David. Stephen King is one of my least favorite people. I am not going to side against Stephen because he is Stephen. It's difficult but you can move past that initial adoration or disgust. Familiarity is how many beings are able to survive in cohabitation. Familiarity turns off the primitive response to an organism that just now appeared in your presence. Familiarity used as decision making is for those that lack the cognition to rapidly judge whether this being that appeared in their vicinity is a threat or not. Quickly flash a photo of a random human in front of someone. Their first recollections will be? Race, gender, outfit. To be outraged that someone noticed your ethnicity is some really unjust bullshit that is not only common, but has a serious impact on social workings. I am not about the status quo. Most that claim they are not, actually are, they just want to be on top now. I just want to be left alone. You can do the same, but you want others to bend to your favorite master's will. As long as you want a master, then you'll be fearing everyone around you. Master requires this.

Avoiding confrontation like you are taught to do as a youth is not just easier for you but it is much more difficult for society overall. Walking away is easy if your life is in danger. For people that are ego bound and can't let trivial confrontation slide, walking away is more difficult because emotion often disregards survival. If you are at school and the bully is making his rounds, punch him in the jaw. Even if you lose, bullies usually prefer easy targets, so you offering any resistance is a deterrent in the future. It also shows others that they are human like anyone else. A person should not be using fear to control others for personal gain. In a situation where a child predator is child preying around and wouldn't stop his behavior without someone making him afraid to continue that behavior, yes. However, as a society we have utilized that fear down to traffic tickets. It should not require threat of your immediate death for you to stand up for yourself.

Most of us have attended some sort of martial arts training or watched the videos at least. First of all, the application of 'forms' and 'moves' in martial arts doesn't usually work in street fights. Everyone has a routine until something unexpected occurs. I am about pure defense which leads me to my secondly which is that martial arts instructors should be pumping the brakes on the forms and weights and hit the gas on learning their body (minimizing its limitations and maximizing its capabilities for self-defense), learning about the environment they inhabit, learning about human behavior in groups and individually, learning about how to exist causing the least amount of suffering to life. I am no sifu but I do have a decent understanding of human behavior and my environment with decent modes of self-defense. I've lived in gang environments with gang members that did gang things. Street gang environments, members, and things - not religious or political in this case. I've lived with religious nutrolls and political nutrolls as well. I've lived with wealthy people and in the projects. I've worked factory, service, and corporate jobs. 35 years of it, if you're not too actively engaged in their issues and more observant of them instead...you learn things.

Third, martial arts instructors...actually, anyone that is in charge of filling a fresh mind with information...should be teaching how to exist daily while causing the least amount of suffering to life, and how to have the least amount of impact possible on the environment we inhabit. In pampered, entitled America people think that because of either their religious text or their political one, they can do whatever they want to the environment. Manifest Destiny, the Constitution, the Bible. All three of them are compressed tree pulp inked in Washington D.C.'s sewage. Manifest Destiny is basically saying that it is the white man's right to conquer shit. I am not even going to waste my time on that nonsense. The Bible and the Constitution are more difficult for people to see the sewage in. In this next section I will destroy the part of the parchment the #1776heads cum to every day. The ones their favorite rich masters can never seem to get right, as they have to keep amending it and adding new ones. The rich masters have to amend it to maintain control. Any person that loves the flag and/or the cross remains apathetic to the horrors committed in the name of them.

Amendment 1: Protects freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of assembly and the right to petition the government.

Freedom of speech is being nullified by people begging corporations and politicians to silence those that disagree with their master's rhetoric. The block button, for example. Calling the police on people. Freedom of religion translates as freedom to choose your own mental slavery. Protesting is begging master for longer chains, still an appeal to authority. Go ahead and petition the government. Enjoy your fees, litigation, stress, and ultimately...your rejection. 2nd Amendment: Protects the right to keep and bear arms.

This is nullified by the "conditions". You are prohibited if you received a dishonorable discharge, if you have had substance abuse issues, if you have mental health issues(every human does), if you have a domestic violence case, etc.

Amendments 12, 15, 17, 19, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26 all “permit” you to have and beg for a favorite rich master.

"They need to be held accountable!" is repeated nonstop by Americans when someone is beaten or killed by American schutze.

"They need to be held accountable!" is American for "someone needs to do something" which implies "someone else and not me" which gives the police so much absurd power to begin with. What an intellectually defective, master worshiping, apathetic, corporate, slave ass society.

"They need to be held accountable!" is American for "I care, but just not enough to actually do anything to prevent these situations from happening!"

"They need to be held accountable!" is American for "I beg rich masters to solve my social issues with the same police that are beating and killing us!"

There are many people that have serious health issues, are elderly, etc. Those people obviously cannot physically stop a situation if they see it. Many still will try though. Just because they are handicapped in some way doesn't mean they have lost what it is to exist or will just let bad things happen to others.

Police are CSR employees that are paranoid and will kill you. When one of you pampered, entitled Americans has an issue and screams for the corporation they work for to 'fix' it(which always involves manipulation and coddling of the customer/caller) - they are required to show up vests, guns, and canines deep. You know, because someone having a cookout next door, walking their dog, selling loose cigarettes, or calling you a name is a punishable by death or the American concrete & steel revenue generating gulag.

People that live in America are not a problem.

People that identify as American ARE.

People that live in Russia are not a problem.

People that identify as Russian ARE.

People that live in Canada are not a problem.

People that identify as Canadian ARE.

People that live in Ukraine are not a problem.

People that identify as Ukrainian ARE.

And so on and so forth for every other flag ass, corporate conglomerate across the globe.

When you identify as something, you make it your identity. When you identify as something under the umbrella of geographic boundary, the corporation representing your geographic boundary approves. Adaptation is a form of intelligence but eventually becomes submission.

All group identities divide people into groups by default. When you beg masters(voting) they always have something in camera view. What is it? A nationalist cloth. You are begging those that exploit you to stop doing what provides them such a luxurious, powerful existence. That is defective intellectually.

This juvenile, gang-gang, nationalist garbage enforces social issues, it does not solve them. Begging rich people to solve your social issues with their police enforces social issues, it does not solve them.

NCNNV03

The 'health'...'industry' generates over $1270000000 in the United States. $1.27 Billion. I doubt you can accurately picture that in front of you. At a certain point a room full of cash blurs together. The state loves its lowest bidding contractors. They are willing to write the state's words at our expense.

MEDICAL AUTHORITY.

Depraved, filthy, plastic using, animal killing, gas/resource wasting, ecosystem destroying, sanctity of life preaching, mass consuming, fat ass, American slaves. Misanthropy for me. Why? Not because something is wrong with me. I don't sit in silence. It's because there is a swampload of ass wrong with how you exist DAILY. Keep trying to make me the problem for calling you on your degenerate behavior like that hasn't been tried before over and over and over and over and over and over. Look at you in your trucks and your boats and ATVs and lawnmowers. You are, by strict definition, intellectually remedial. You are mentally defective and your hard drive has been replaced with instant sensations (snacks, music, etc) and a nationalist flag. You are no longer a being, let alone a free being though your ridiculous 1776heads' doctrine makes you think you are. A free being would grow food instead of cutting their grass. The way you exist daily [clocking in and consuming and wasting and repeating] causes other people to commit suicide. Your participation in master's racket keeps other people forcefully trapped in it. An ultimatum is not voluntary employment. Medical employees will repeat the company line or they don't get their basic needs met by that company. They don't get the social status of 'doctor'. They get terminated. A doctor that doesn't want to be held by this obscene authority, opens his own practice and institutes his own obscene authority. Sort of how the 1776heads came over here from England, not to create a free society, but because they were tired of being the ones on the bottom. They came over here, decimated the Native Americans, and became kings. The state uses medical institutions to silence people that say things like I do. "As scholars have long argued, governmental and medical institutions code menaces to authority as mental diseases during political disturbances." Look at Adrian Schoolcraft or Aurora D'Angelo. I am about solving issues, getting to the bottom of issues while keeping the irrational, primitive garbage out of the room. Most valid resolutions do not meet with pampered, entitled American desired outcomes so they bring that irrational, primitive garbage and fill the whole fucking room up with it. I am not the most intelligent human ever. I am however, more intelligent by default than the majority of society based on the two facts that I neither worship a zombie nor celebrities. I am willing to accept when I am wrong and I do, the problem is that the majority of the time I just happen to be correct and irrational, emotional cunts can't validly refute my challenges. That's why they resort to flag rhetoric, boot rhetoric, blue collar rhetoric, the parchment the #1776heads cum to, "if you don't like it leave", etc. Many of us would leave if you hadn't begged wealthy authority to keep us here. What in the brokebackwoods fuck makes you think this is YOUR country? Is it because you 'done went and did the manual labor for massa' so you feel you can burn up all the social resources you want to? Is it because you were born to some other nationalist remedials? I was born here to some nationalist remedials but I actually value the land. Not your label of it or your imaginary boundary, but all beings flora and fauna...well except you. You destroy so life would probably be better off without you.

Power: Oil/Gas vs Hydro vs Solar, Corporate Revenue

All Oil and Gas Corporations greenwash their behavior beforehand and whitewash it after. Consumer humans have this remarkable superpower: they can be lied to and apologized to over and over and over and over yet – they will believe the next lie told to them by an authoritarian logo[Exxon, BP, FDA, USDA, DOE, etc]. They are like the vulnerable dog whose master kicks her all the time, still coming up to master hoping this time she won't be kicked. They are cautious but they want their garbage. Desire overrides rational fear. Fossil fuels burned up so the consumers can drive across the town square to get their Dunkin' Donuts. A lazy, apathetic society that is focused solely on what the authoritarian logos dictate through conditioning. Snacks, electronics, boats, trucks, ATVs, celebrities, and anything else that makes the slave focus on self and divide self from others. Generous people do not compete for resources. People that do not hoard and compete for crumbs do not submit to the financial conditioning that constructs it. Currently, corporations are trying to demolish a wide berth of land all the way through the state of maine. Claiming hydro is better. It is...while in use. However, the destruction beforehand, the destruction during construction, and the destruction during deconstruction is absurd similarly.

While in Bangor I did promo work for a CMP[Central Maine Power] shell company called Second Street Associates. Their tactics are disgusting. We walk around getting signatures from 'mainahs'. If you talk to them, most think they understand the entire planet because they think they understand one media/corporate driven avenue of thinking. As in, they found a way to justify worshiping their favorite rich politician and engaging in one side or the other of the American political paracosm. They like hearing themselves sound smart to themselves and it is aggravating to listen to. Most of the canvassers know how disgusting the tactics are but...20 federal debt credits per hour pays the debts we owe massa just for existing. I recorded people because that's what I do when humans do bogus things to others and I have zero power to stop it. I needed my 20 federal debt credits but then, even that wasn't enough to persuade me to continue to be complicit in the dumbing down of maine even FURTHER. It wasn't even the dumbing down of the remedials that got me, it was the football field that stretches through the state to another ganged up boundary, massachusetts. They claimed it was only 48' but it's closer to 148'. The amount of life that is in a cubic foot of forest is astounding. The majority of humans behave in a way that shows they think that because smaller organisms don't hack airplanes or go slave for a massa, they are not intelligent and/or not even life at all. Without them, we wouldn't have one. If you build a hydroelectric corridor, the oil and gas companies are going to cry about the cut into their $2 trillion federal debt credits profit. Oil and gas companies are killing everything. This is not new information. In fact, it's tired. So tired that people have become desensitized to it. "Someone else will solve things, I can just focus on my cheap labor and snacks!", sayeth the corporate American majority. Well, the people 'solving' things are not interested in resolutions because resolutions to environmental/social issues almost always kill profit. If you don't build the corridor, the people who oppose oil/gas are going to cry. See, instead of working on their behavior and disciplining themselves and their use/consumption – people want to just keep maxing out resources and try to mitigate any devastating effects(which is impossible). They say it removes 700,000 worth of automobile carbons. That omits the fact that car sales are skyrocketing as are the numbers of humans. It also omits that that is only during operation. As I said, it increases emissions during construction and if they ever have to deconstruct it. They also love to say it will create 1,600 jobs and that preference will go to maine people. What kind of goddamn slap in the face is that? "We're sorry for destroying your land so we'll make it up to you by letting you do the work!"

I had to walk around with an app that had a list of registered voters. Statists that beg the rich to solve their social issues. Slaves. Cowards. Many people were listed several times and on occasion the canvassers made the people think they were signing against the corridor just so the canvasser could get more signatures to present to massa at the end of the day. Do I have this recorded? I offer you a resounding, militant 'yes'! There were also people that tried to sign just because I was working in the cold. I told them, you can't do that. I tried to get as few signatures as possible after the first day because I quickly saw the bullshit. One guy had a massive, expansive property and though he and I both agree it is a bad deal for the environment – he is ex military and indoctrinated so when he hears 'jobs' his indoctrinated ass patriotism kicked into high gear. When the NoCMP people did their canvassing, they paid people $35 federal debt credits hourly. Both sides have millions of your wages to play with while you're clocked in struggling to pay rent. Also:

<https://www.mainepublic.org/post/hydro-quebec-ballot-question-committee-pays-35k-ethics-fine> they have to pay fines for unethical garbage. Pay to do whatever you like in this land of oppressive opportunity. Unless you're poor, then you go to the concrete and steel revenue generation gulag. You know, the one I constantly am telling people about how it generates more revenue than the combined GDP of 133 countries?!

What else is a Green Hat to do? Destroying CMP internally will do what? Create a vacuum for another profiteer to come exploit us for basic needs. They might even do what other exploitative corporations like CCA and Global Tel-Link do and change their name and continue like nothing happened (they are now CoreCivic and GTEL). Back to that superpower the consumer slaves have in unlimited supply. The system provides corporations with teams of litigators room to navigate and exploit. As long as they operate within the wording of rich masters and/or they are willing to accept part of it (like that Hydro Quebec fine), they can do...what...ever...they...want. No matter how destructive.

Authoritarian, Underhanded Social Media

Silencing people has been going on for millenia. Authority is usually overreaching and cannot be rationally/logically defended so it resorts to one, many, or all of the fallacies found here:

<https://utminers.utep.edu/omwilliamson/ENGL1311/fallacies.htm>

The state doesn't have to silence you if everyone else is yelling or if corporations are allowing it to be done for them. Meta is the Facebook/Instagram corporation. Meta loves controlling information and the flow of it. Social media is becoming an indoctrination camp of state/media fear rhetoric. I bet you the life of a corporate American slave that 90% of the people on social media that scream about the 1st amendment(they didn't get their precious parchment correct the first time) and free speech are all utilizing the block button heavily. Me? Never. Not even in messages. If you are standing on what is solid, you do not need to silence people. Silencing people is obscene authority and is used to invalidate righteous anger! Americans block anything they just "don't like", "don't agree with", or that is just annoying. How do you think I feel about your stupid engines? That genuinely needs to be silenced but the only block button for that is to end the person. They have free will and they love their loud ass machines, firecrackers, music, etc. I am no killer, I am not going to make them quadriplegic or render them brain dead some other way, so I have to endure. I endure things that have actual, physical effects on me. You don't like....words. You silence them. I cannot silence your engines and nationalist bang bangs that go boom. Rednecks in trucks to me are black rap thugs with guns to those rednecks, except that my anger is not displaced or rooted in xenophobia. If a black guy was in the truck, I would hate him the same. It is the loud, obnoxious behavior and noise. White dude, black dude, red dude, blue dude – if you rev an engine or slam dominoes I fucking hate you. I can't and don't attempt to silence them though, except with headphones. Life is lose-lose for someone with my intellect, morality, and sensitivity to noise. Humans are slaves/masters. Human 'morality' is based on material things. Humans are loud. As fuck. For no reason. Yet they do everything they can to silence my challenges to their ridiculous, purposeless existence as snack consuming, luxury for master generating, cheap labor slaves.

employee: *exists

manager:

Why would a religious remedial change their mind they day they are dying? I didn't challenge my grandmother on her jesus rhetoric. I am not going to fill her day with emotional frustration. She made her choice and nothing I could say would ever change it. Once someone has abandoned rational thought for so long, getting it back is....next to impossible. That is why silencing people is so much easier. The NIMBY fallacy. "Not In My Back Yard!" If they can remove something from their immediate view, then they can pretend it ceases to exist and they can resume their degenerate thought(which causes degenerate behavior).

Tone and language policing is also a serious problem on social media, in courts, and other businesses. Yes, court is a business. In court and on social media the rule has become:

"You talk how I say you talk or you don't get to talk at all!!"

Yeah, no room for oppression there when no one really speaks the same and people who are angry usually speak with expletives, etc. Less articulate people have an even more difficult time speaking through anger coherently. Court officials are shitstains for exploiting that. "Permission to speak freely" is one of the most disgusting American phrases I have ever heard.

Haxking

Directory Traversals are my one of favorites. They sometimes keep me going if I feel I haven't had a discovery in recent enough history. They are relatively easy sometimes. I typed `.env` at the end of the URL and pwned a whole site. Sometimes it is that easy. Other times encoding, double encoding, or the `../` dot dot pwn are required or not even possible. Learning URL encoding helps to work your way around input sanitization. There are lists and tools but I prefer manual testing. Using tools is great especially for time saving, but...after you have learned what those tools do. Pressing play is not haxking. Just like borrowing someone's phone, pulling up their facebook, and making a post is not haxking. I do not use Burp or ZAP. That is pressing play. Learn what directories and files are important on different servers and then look for them. Recon is the most important step because if you do not pinpoint what your target is running, you are wasting time. That `.env` traversal is not going to work on a Microsoft IIS server. You should look for a `web.config` file. Also, it's illogical and dangerous to start trying exploits on a target you know nothing about. Stop watching Mr. Robot.

"Black Hats exploit people directly.

White Hats do so through their corporate/state employers.

Grey Hats blend the two.

Green Hats haxk existence for social and environmental flourishing."

KNOWLEDGE/EXISTENCE FOR SALE():

Leave it to humans to come up with such an obscene concept. Pick your favorite college/university. They are all ganged up behind their mascot/logo/brand. Walk down the hallway at your local institution. What is your gang's logo? Strong probability it is either a bulldog, tiger, eagle, wildcat, bear, or lion. Scholarships are awarded but 34% of people can't afford it and the ones that can are working multiple stupid jobs, stupid hours. The knowledge becomes a super salted hash at these institutions. Colonial history being the notorious salt. You get knowledge but it has all this padding and garbage which confuses people, intentionally. Nationalist garbage, feel-good atrocities. Manifest Destiny. Native American population decimation. Those that truly felt the depravity of the Trail of Tears would never be saying the pledge of allegiance. I can proudly say that even in elementary school I refused to say the pledge of allegiance. I hate posses. Geographic ones, cultural ones, ethnic ones, religious ones, political ones, corporate ones, badge and gun'd ones, educational ones, street ones, all of them. "I ain't got no identity so if I grab one the state hands me that is socially acceptable, I will be socially accepted within my own social circle of other identity-less John Doe's! We can all jus' be the flag and then we ain't got to do none the hard thinkin'!" Obviously that statement isn't real because those people usually don't understand abstract concepts and are unable to view their behavior from a rational 3rd party perspective. People that are conditioned are more than willing to pay for knowledge. And air. And water. And fire. And Earth. And shelter. Their mass numbers submitting to this exploitation of basic needs forces all of us to submit to this oppressive, destructive system. Spread the word and hopefully we can stop trying to force every being to justify an existence they did not ask for with manual labor. It surpasses wasteful and becomes violent and destructive for us and non-human life. Our industry is killing everything. How many educational institutions are there in this corporate shithole? 5300. They generate $695 Billion dollars annually. Break the backs of the uneducated and their families. A lifetime of debt and corporate servitude. Disgusting.

Today I confronted two redneck remedials on their violence towards existence. One screamed on repeat that it was his job and massa gave him permission. All the other could come up with after a brief gaseous discharge in the gyri and sulci was that it was "good exercise". If killing things daily, violently is considered a 'career', we may need a new social construct. They destroy the environment so that they may have shelter/food yet they use nothing that came from the land they destroyed. Landscapers mowing for example. A purposeless activity that uses up actual resource while causing ridiculous pollution. The environment provides more than enough of food and shelter for all humans in existence. Try to explain this to them and they stall out and stall out HARD. That is why they default to the "It's mah job, massa dun gave me permishun!" garbage. Existence is brutal enough without the suits exploiting us down every avenue they can potentially travel and the remedial rednecks and uncle toms defending them. All the while proclaiming their concern for our well-being. Authority is make believe and only valid if you pretend with them. For example, police enforce this 'basic needs for sale' system. Why would you submit to their authority? Fear, doctrine, compliance(no confrontation)? It is easier to just say, "Dur, yed dur!" and let them move on to exploiting someone else. This concern for only self is a serious remedialant for any 'movement' trying to change the status quo. The majority of people will choose themselves at the end of the day. Why resist police and get hurt when they can go home to their snacks and Xboxes instead? That is slave logic and the mental 'processing' of most Americans. Corporate, American, mindless, degenerate thought. Luxuries and conveniences are traps. Destructive traps. Destructive socially, destructive environmentally. Obscene authority always rally others behind the 'greater good' which ultimately destroys quality of life for most individuals. This is counterintuitive and highly effective in manipulating people.

In my GitHub project socialissues, a disturbing section is the housing section. The numbers are infuriating as is the state's depraved indifference:

99  =def growth_other_species():
100      pass
101
102  =def housing():
103      restc = 2430000 #num_real_estate_businesses
104      commb = 5900000 #num_commercial_buildings
105      bootb = 240000 #num_military_buildings
106      commf = 97000000000 #num_comm_building_sqft
107      commo = 82.8/100 #comm_prop_occupied
108      commv = 17.2/100 #comm_prop_vacant
109      commw = 2400000000000 #comm_property_worth in USD
110      resb = 141950000 #num_residential_buildings
111      reso = 100/(88.4*resb) #res_prop_occupied
112      resv = 100/(11.6*resb) #res_prop_vacant [currently 16+ million]
113
114  = with open('/housing.xls', 'r') as hxls:

Bottom line? More empty homes than homeless. Trillions and trillions of dollars these places are worth in total, yet we can't make sure people have shelter from the elements without having to be exploited by some religious or image-based charity organization? Picture in your mind the empty square footage. People in facilities live in < 100 square foot areas. There is so much excess that, as with food, the waste would solve the problem by itself. There are 16 million vacant properties and less than 600,000 homeless people. This is no existence. Neither the state, nor corporations are for us.

HAXKING():

I read HTZ in middle school, always remembering the Industrial Beast section of 7. Manual labor to provide for self and family is one thing. This authoritarian, financial, class warfare construct...this industry of gluttony, waste, and excess is an atrocious other and of course...not sustainable. Recently, I see HackThisSite pushing people to go beg for rich masters. On the front page of the site.

<https://www.hackthissite.org/news/view/726> telling people that their fucking lives depend on begging rich masters to solve our social issues with their police and our money. Always remember, heroes are garbage. You should aspire to be the best version of yourself without worshipping yourself in place of whatever hero you had. You know who wants rulers/masters? You guessed it. Hopefully.

SLAVES!

I imagine some nationalist degenerate will hit me with their obnoxious engine or their boomstick. I don't carry guns or knives. I carry a laptop, a hackbox, and multiple Kali sticks. Pun intended and accurate. I carry both. My haxkbox is very different but if you watch some old Jayson Street videos about physical pentesting, you can get some ideas for tools to carry. I do not do the haxking he does so our tools are different.

In the Varnell bombing case in 2017 I had to write a Python script that hijacked the Amber Alert service and sent a mass text. Recently, I wrote a quick script that removes having to use the Amber Alerts at all:

1. import smtplib
2. server = smtplib.SMTP('smtp.gmail.com', 587)
3. server.starttls()
4. server.login('uname@gmail.com', 'passwd')
5. with open('smsnum.txt'):
6.     for num in txt:
7.         num0 = str(num) + '@txt.att.net'
8.         num1 = str(num) + '@vtext.com'
9.         num2 = str(num) + '@tmomail.net'
10.        num3 = str(num) + '@messaging.sprintpcs.com.'
11.        num4 = str(num) + '@vmobl.com'
12.        num5 = str(num) + '@mmst5.tracfone.com'
13.        num6 = str(num) + '@myboostmobile.com'
14.        num7 = str(num) + '@email.uscc.net'
15.        num8 = str(num) + '@mymetropcs.com'
16.        try:

17.         server.sendmail('The Universe(translated)', num0,
'Mental defectives worship celebs/politicians, mow instead of growing food, and slave doing unnecessary shit.')
18.     except:
19.         print('error')

1. this imports the library used to send emails.
2. this defines the server and port
3. this starts TLS mode (successor to SSL)
4. this logs in with provided uname/passwd
5. this opens a txt document containing a huge number list
6. this, along with user choice in 17 (num0, num1, etc), chooses correct carrier.
7-15. converts integer to string and combines with carrier's email-to-text domain to form "From" address.
16-17. this is the function that actually sends the message requiring three things:
From:
To(num0, num1, etc):
Msg:
18. if the msg can't send, it throws an error handled on line 19.
19. which simply prints 'error' without quotations.

Do you know how hard my current bail condition of "no contact with law enforcement" bound me?! I have many texts like line 17 which fit inside Gmail's 124 character email-to-text limit that I would like to send every so often. I get so many junk/spam calls/texts that are looking to exploit, extort, or steal, or get me to take a politician's phallus that I see no harm in texting 10000 random people a single time, trying to explain how they can stop destructive behaviors. If they do not like my message text, they probably engage heavily in the behaviors I am describing. I know it is considered social taboo to call anyone or their tyrant offspring on their garbage behavior but I do it. Say I text 480 random people on day one without passing Gmail's daily limit. Any one of those random numbers could have been a police officer's cell. The nationalist jackboots' masters would try to use that like I broke my bail condition. So I cannot use my script though it would be the most efficient way to reach the most people without having to stand at the front of the grocery store like some corporate santa begging for federal debt credits for my wealthy masters(Salvation Army) or the weird ass, cliché man on the bus demanding everyone join his religious paracosm. If I ask someone else to run my script with different prefixes in smsnum.txt, then that is indirect contact which the boots' leash-holders would also try to twist around. People really need to quit cutting the fucking grass. It kills, it pollutes, it serves no purpose other than preference in appearance. Earth and existence are not a fashion show, stupid. All of the tools we have at our disposal and look what most people do with their time. Garbage. I want on the next plane of existence out of here.

Current Events: A Paracosm of Distraction For the Poor():

From your favorite rich master to wars in other continents to the chemically coping addict in your town doing something out of the ordinary, which of these three things sparks your interest? If you're a gossiping ass human, like most simpleminded nationalist/statist/materialist slaves are, then probably all three. Me, only the third one and how I can help interests me. Wars are rich masters causing division(slaves that unite do not submit to master) and keeping this environmental degradation steamrolling to remain in the black. The chemically coping addicts? They are the real victims. They are trapped in this corporate, financial, oppressive class warfare construct with ZERO escape from it physically or mentally. Chemicals though...they help escape emotionally, mentally, and physically. Then the corporate state gets to profit afterwards as well. The person becomes a commodity for the substance abuse industry. Yes it is an industry. A fleabag rehab in Oklahoma City rakes in thousands of dollars per person per month. A $42 Billion dollar industry. An industry that blames the addict while claiming it doesn't. Forcing the person to change and conform to the corporate construct does not help the person except as a means to shut down their processing which is no existence at all. I have a great idea – stop forcing people to exist most of their waking hours as cheap, manual labor for excess, unnecessary shit. I bet suicides and many mental health issues decrease SEVERELY. You cannot force humans to exist the way we are forced to exist and expect them to be healthy and calm. We are biological machines not on/off toasters.

Humans love gossip. Humans love vicarious experience. I love it. I enjoy going outside into the forest but lately even I would like to do any and everything I have to do- from home. I do not want to interact with you politician/media/news worshiping, loud ass vehicle driving, resource wasting degenerates. Most are at the places I need to go. There are a few people in my community that are not total invalids but usually intelligent people spend less time socializing with the tards and more time learning, growing, and developing. I physically hang out with zero haxkers. That is not a haxker collective but the actual number of haxkers I socialize with. I no longer attend phallus waving haxkathons. I am not going to pay to go to White Hat ass Defcon and BlackHatUSA when I can just watch the videos. Strange how all of those haxkers that intentionally present an 'autistic' vibe do a magnificent job socializing with everyone and speaking in front of them. Some of these social degenerates even claim they are on the spectrum in case other attentive people have the doubts I do, and by them declaring this, that will tip the scale towards "Wow! She should have auditioned for one of the alphabet agency shows as that quirky person who dresses differently but is still socially graceful!" Fucking lost humans always needing to identify as something to declare their separateness from other lost humans. Maybe if you stopped being a fake piece of corporate American garbage, drenching your face in make-up, wearing metal trinkets, and dressing like you're doing a Starbuck's ad on TikTok – people might be more drawn to you. The right people find genuineness refreshing(unless your genuineness is serial killer or child molester or something). The wrong people will not accept your presence unless you conform to theirs. 95% (pretty close) of people are mentally bound in nationalist, religious, and/or corporate paracosms. Mentally bound meaning actively and/or proudly participating in them regardless of consequence to life. I have found few of them and those few are online so how do I even know those people are legitimate? I know a couple of them are real humans but many of them still beg rich masters to solve our social issues with their police and our money. For example, the 2nd Point of Freedom for the Black Panther party is begging to go work for massa:

Observing the Communist principles and the Fascist principles, I realized that socioeconomic systems themselves are a depraved, intentional, global problem. This land of excess has severe excess for a few and severe lack for many. This assuming a quality of life in accordance with the times. No one should suffer for an Xbox. I used to play Xbox. Then I thought about the amount of work that goes into creating the games, maintaining the servers, etc and I refuse to clock in. That means I am profiting from someone else's labor without doing any of the work for that end result. If I want to play the game I should help develop the game. This is a fantastic concept except in this society – HR doesn't like vocal, angry people. They want calm, complacent drones preferable to honest, genuine individuals. I am never in a position where I am able to help develop the game, though I have a strong foundation in programming. Being a video game tester is not work. I too, it would seem, am bound by the concept of applying specific value to labor. This is false, however. I am bound by the concepts of thermodynamic law, input/output, what is actually required to exist, and the law of conservation of mass. There cannot be more than there was. Your excess is someone else's deficit.

Death and Ritual():

Here is a simple test to tell who is the most afraid of death: The more rituals and chants and symbolism and shit there are – the more fear surrounding death there is. It is not just the primitive cultures long ago throughout history – it is today. Now. In your community. This fear of death and often consequently life, is exploited by those with wealth and power. Most people are afraid of death but many of us do not spend our waking hours fearing everything bad that could and/or will happen. Yes, I will die. Statistics suggest probably violently(not necessarily by someone with malice). I could spend my days hiding away but instead, I engage people in my community about the things I write. I have many approvals and many enemies. The approvals are generally from people that choose life over a dollar or they are too afraid to say what they really think. The disapprovals are almost always from veterans, nationalists, politician worshipers, rednecks in trucks, people that mow instead of growing food, etc.

Here's an interesting concept I was thinking about – how many deaths can be attributed to people being afraid of death excluding self-defense incidents? Bicycle helmets. There are people that died wearing helmets that wouldn't have died had they not been wearing a helmet. Automobile safety measures for another example. The windshield would have given him TBI but the seatbelt instead, broke his neck and killed him. How many people have died constructing bridges so that their 'people' could safely cross a body of water? There is a recorded number 90 but history is much longer than 1776. How many people have died building shelter from the elements? How many have died from those elements while building shelter from them? For someone else. Someone else that is physically capable but trades other people's work for a 'living' (stockbrokers, CEOs, small business owners(if they have outside employees), etc). How many people have died for master's loot? How many people have died for master's belief system in the afterlife? The forelife? Natural disasters and diseases should be the death toll but humans die doing some weird shit. We are evolved from fish apparently, though so...

People like myself and a few others I know want our bodies to nourish the environment and small life, not be confined in a box with ridiculous phallus-like statues on top, sprawled with stupid quotes for eternity. I want to provide sustenance in death. Most people want the monuments and statues of themselves to be revered. Many because they feel they were next to gods in life, others because they feel the opposite. All based in fear and conditioning. Humans in this society try to paint you as a monster/remediated if you don't fear the things they do. If you don't fear the current disease or disaster. I often get misunderstood when I say I am not afraid of death. It doesn't mean I am ready and willing, it just means I am not going to let fear of that dictate the life I live. Many people in Florida(and the 49 others) are people that...I'll say I would not be upset if they weren't able to continue their destructive, wasteful, consuming, apathetic existences but I do respect them not hiding, evacuating because of the hurricane. The increase in refusals to evacuate, the increase the number of people that actually go outside, and the death toll contradicts media fear. You know who clocks in to afford to buy things they don't need and are easy to control? People that consume corporate/state media fear daily. If you didn't get your snacks, shows, games, personal vehicle/clothes etc, would you still clock in? Some will, but most wouldn't. Amenities are complacency for the cheap labor slave. The current routine they have, they always get to the next day so just keep on keeping on. That surviving vs existing difference. Fearing death while not living the life you have is no existence. It is a prison of suffering. You can escape it but social conditioning is hard to break for most people. Conforming means no confrontation, no heightened emotions, no feeling, no attention drawn on self. Comfortable.

Haxking():

Earth is brutal. Humans and their boredom/necessity/ingenuity created chemicals that help. Sometimes. In the short term. Long-term and/or high intensity short term lead to dependency. Very few humans in this society are without chemical dependency. Sugar, caffeine, nicotine, cannabis, fluoxetine, zoloft, xanax, meth, crack, mdma, heroin. I am addicted to the first five. Most people are bound by a combination of the first three. Those addicted to street and corporate drugs have a monstrous beast of a time ahead of them. To me, sugar is the one I hate the most because of the miserable, depraved labor behind it. I cannot teach anyone about bio-haxking when I still have existentially extra chemicals that I cannot function daily without. I do have a saying though: "Hypocrites usually know so I listen". I wanted to preface this section by saying that you should look into bio-haxking as much as you do computer haxking and do everything you can to abandon your dependencies. No pun intended. Dependencies are control. Not a healthy form of control either and certainly not yours but of you.

New people to haxking that haven't followed an institutional cybersecurity path always, and I mean always think like the movies. "A few keystrokes under pressure and I'll be in the mainframe's password database and all the unicode dollar haxks are MINE!!!" Another trap new people fall into is what I call "pressing play" to haxk. BurpSuite, OwaspZAP, etc. There are people finding bug bounties right now that have absolutely no idea what Burp did to find them. Automated tools save time, but if you don't know what they do, you will be dead in the water if you have no access to them. I am not going to do tool tutorials. Pull up a fresh install of a non-pentesting distro of Linux(I run CrunchBang++). You have no tools. Say you are exploring a site and it is a Linux server, where are you going to look for sensitive files/data? The Linux file structure. Boring. Necessary. 74% of web-facing computers run Linux. Interestingly, 74% of all personal computers run Windows. If you are looking to haxk people, other victims of the system – find a noose instead. Thanks.

File Structure:

- / - root directory
- /bin - non-superuser command binaries
- /boot - files for bootloader
- /dev - device, device files
- /etc - systemwide config files
- /home – user stuff
- /lib - /bin and /sbin libraries
- /media - USB/DVD mount points
- /mnt - mounted file systems
- /opt - optional packages for apps
- /proc - view process and kernel info as files
- /root - root user stuff
- /run - info since boot
- /sbin - system binaries
- /srv - data/scripts the system serves to other systems
- /sys - device, driver, kernel info
- /tmp - temp files
- /usr - read only user utilities/apps
- /var - files that consistently change, logs, email files etc

The Good Stuff:

/boot/vmlinuz - kernel file
/etc/bashrc - defaults for bash
/etc/crontab - cron commands
/etc/group - security group
/etc/hosts - hostnames/IPs
/etc/hosts.allow - hostnames/IPs allowed
/etc/hosts.deny - hostnames/IPs denied
/etc/modules.conf - config files for modules
/etc/motd - message of the day
/etc/mtab - mounted blocks
/etc/passwd - users no pass hash
/etc/resolv.conf - DNS used
/etc/securetty - root login terminals
/etc/shadow - users with pass hash
/usr/bin - user exe commands
/usr/bin/x11 - binaries for X system
/usr/sbin - superuser commands

It is 2022 yet many sites still have exposed files. Around 60% of all vulnerabilities are from misconfigurations. Devs are taught to build apps, not secure them. I was testing a site(let's say it's a university or a bank or a hotel or a hospital or a gas company) and they had their /etc/shadow file exposed when you visited the no SSL version of the site(not https). It looks something like this:

root:*:::::::
bob:LHCs987r.oqih:::::::
alice:c4&TRc_)%:::::::
charles:ytd%#vcgfC6:::::::
ftp:*:::::::
adm:*:::::::
daemon:*:::::::
```

The colons separate these variables:

Username:Hashed Password>Last Password Change:Days Before

Password Change Allowed:Max Days Password Valid:Days To Warn:Days
Until Disabled:Account Expiration

The hashed password is one step away from pwnership. You need to get John the Ripper or HashCat or ~488 trees. To install JtR open Terminal:

mkdir ~/src
git clone https://github.com/openwall/john -b bleeding-jumbo john cd ~/src/john/src
./configure && make -s clean && make -sj4
```

To use JtR, save a username and hashed pass to a txt file (for this example we'll call it tocrack.txt) then open terminal:

john tocrack.txt
```

It took JtR 31 days, 05 hours, 13 minutes, and 22 seconds to crack bob's password on a 4Gb RAM i3 laptop. Cracked passwords are kept in the john.pot file. Advanced use cases for JtR can be found here:

<https://github.com/openwall/john/blob/bleeding-jumbo/doc/EXAMPLES>

This 2001 methodology should not have worked in this era of computer science but as I said, devs are taught rapid production, not security. There are misconfigured apps, servers, and sites all across the internet. You just need to look.

Humans, Alcohol, and Guns():

Riding my bicycle back from the grocery store getting coffee and rice, a redneck(not the main one of this incident) in the truck he gave a rim job to, guns it right as he passes me, accelerating DOWNHILL. I called him a remedial. His shitmobile absolutely prevented him from hearing what I said, but he saw me say anything. He acts like he is going to stop but sees me filming. What does he do instead? Acts like he left but then comes back driving back and forth, burning up more resources/gasoline. He's filming me as I am filming him. He is repeating his blue collar 'master loves me and I love my stuff' slave rhetoric while I explain the concept of negative(deficit) labor.

After he leaves having no valid refutation for his garbage, a redneck(the main one of this incident) on that street of spaced out houses overheard and starts with me. I tell him cry about it. He responds with 'what?' and starts firing. He shot at me 3x from his porch, 6x more on the way to me and then 2x more from behind me. I'm not getting shot in the back, I pull out my Kali sticks(not the USB ones). He demanded to know where I am from and explains he is just trying to have a drink and wanted my attention. I feint right and swing upwards with the left Kali, knocking his gun out of his right hand onto the street while yelling that he got my attention. We are on the side of the road at the ATV entrance to the electric corridor. At no point did I strike to kill or coma him, just enough to make sure he stops. I strike 2 more times a right then a left. I stopped and got back in stance but he tried to move for me again so I hit him with a backhand downward right and opened his eye up. I had him dead to rights and had I killed or coma'd him I would have been justified because he ran out shooting at me and didn't stop after several strikes. I used self control and if I was a police officer I would be hailed as a hero by all the Blue Stripe Bandits and their mentally defective worshipers. As I have written in my books previously, I live by a rule where I do what causes the least amount of suffering and in any given situation I use the least amount of violence required. I do not know how I do not have any holes in my body besides the ones I was born with. He was covered in blood but mostly from his eyebrow(notorious for profuse bleeding). I got almost none on me. Once he stops coming towards me anymore(those Kali sticks are excellent deterrents), he tells me to get the fuck out of there. I told him I am picking up my things and if he wants to keep following me, we'll go right back to it. His wife arrived on foot while I was showing my Kali sticks his head, and cradled him home after his lesson. She refused to let him have the gun back. I am looking for my coding book reference and as I find it, sure enough, Sheriffs pull up and order me on my knees with my hands in the air. I throw my Kali down as I couldn't find the other one either. I explain I didn't shoot anyone. They are not having it. Police fear is too high, especially when they get reports of gunshots. At this point, everyone thinks I am the one with the gun. I am in the right and I submitted to my fear of being killed by police, I complied. They patted me down and humanly, they did not arrest me just in case or until they found out that I wasn't the one trying to kill. One stayed with me while the other went looking for the degenerate that was shooting at me. I showed him the video which clearly proves I am not the one shooting, and the other boot came back and they asked me if I wanted to make a statement which I declined. There is no reason for the redneck degenerate to get punished twice for the same crime. He was beaten in battle and humiliated in front of his family. His family should not get extorted by the state and/or corporations in addition(Aramark, SecurusTech, JPay, GTEL, Tiger Commissary etc). They didn't do anything. As I make clear in almost every edition of No Corporations, No Nations: The American 'justice' system generates more revenue than the combined GDP of 133 countries. That revenue comes from the families. The fact remains however, that he is quickly willing to shoot someone walking by when he is drunk. He is a threat. What if it is some teenage kids next time? Every house but two in that area have children. The conversation was over for the redneck degenerate in his loud ass shitmobile and myself but this outside gun nut heard something and wanted to be a part of it somehow, so it continued. I have a right to defend myself but even then I was treated as the suspect. I mean sure, if I was never born this wouldn't have happened but if you try to defend either redneck, you may want to introspect and re-evaluate what your values are.

These two specific boots treated me like a human. If you only point out all positive that DOES make you a bootlicker. All negatives also makes your observations biased. A logical society is not an XOR society. XOR is an eXclusive OR which, in coding, means one or the other but not both. Unfortunately this is how most people are taught to exist in this society. Pepsi vs Coke when not drinking soda at all is an option. Republican vs Democrat when not worshiping/begging rich masters is an option. Easier for the penned up bovines to live their entire lives only having to decide between two things, in all things.

Controlling Others():

You can't even control yourself in excess resource consumption doing an activity that doesn't need to be done. You can't even control yourself in consuming fast food. You can't even control the television with a remote. Bogus choices. For all of their lack of control of self, people love to beg rich masters to use their police and our money to control others. Always with force and violence ultimately. No compromise. I would rather be miserable than inflict misery. I hate that other beings suffer. That is why I do not consume animals. The detachment from the process and the steps within the process of jail and extermination make it easier for people to consume animals. Some try to say they care for their cattle and give them good lives. This is false because a) they are a means for revenue and b) they would have had an existence anyway and one not as product. They didn't need you to put them in a box and bring the grass to them. I get hit with this 'argument' often when I challenge people on controlling others:

"You trying to get others to stop is trying to control others!"

This is not the case otherwise that would be forcing me into a crime of omission. Not attempting to stop violence/destruction makes you complicit. Most people in American society want others to exist as they do. For example, arbitrary laws to force a maximum of how tall your grass in your yard can grow. This law(control of others) is not necessary for existence and in fact, is helping bury ours. If just 1/3 of residential American properties stopped cutting their grass, that would conserve over 1 billion gallons of gasoline per year and ease pollutions from it. Americans don't think that way though. They don't know why, they just have to go get the gas and get to cutting. Blue collar slave rhetoric and middle class image rhetoric. I am powerless to stop any of it yet I persist in my writings and accurately, usually hilariously, calling degenerates on their destructive garbage in person. I am not afraid to die or stand up for myself. This is a requirement when trying to intellectually coach ignorant, proud, or stupid slaves. Intellectually defective people almost always resort to violence when you challenge something their mind has identified their existence as, or a behavior stemming from it. You can't rationally defend 1776head symbolism. You can't rationally defend cutting your grass. You can't rationally defend clocking in for massa to get food, a bed, and an xbox/playstation/atv/smarttv so you can recuperate distracted and go back to work for massa the next day. You can't rationally defend driving 60 in a 25, downhill and only starting to accelerate as you pass someone. These people get mad and if they are afraid to get physical, they do things like hit the gas more. I don't want to fight physically, just as with not being afraid to die - it doesn't mean I WANT it. It's interesting to observe the absurd things weenies do like hitting the gas harder does anything except waste gas/oil/time and make his precious rim job work harder. I challenge people sometimes and I do so not threatening, keeping my distance, not yelling, etc so they can't play victims after finding out they are stupid and then trying to get physical as a result. Also if they ignore me after my second "Hey", I keep going. I do not force it. I do not challenge the same people twice unless they initiate the second time. If they respond, I adopt a Christopher Hitchens demeanor, except with less concern for the language police and not thinking that Themyscira is a safe alternative to this divisive society we have now. Calling people on being stupid is not a crime. Being that stupid people think being a victim or polite is valid replacement for intellect, I need to have a plan outlined like this to protect myself. I've challenged police and the public on their garbage for years now. I do the same thing every time. Here's why you're remediated, here's how your behavior is destructive, etc. Most people say "yeah/haha" and just go back to what they are doing. Some people try to spit that blue collar slave rhetoric(self-justification for a garbage existence) and stall out almost immediately. I am not the most intelligent person in the world, I just happened to be trapped in a society of human and imaginary friend deifying, corporate non-automatons. Manual labor drones with no original thought.

"Brent why do you hate rednecks?" Short answer? I don't. Long answer? When I lived on S. Orange Ave in Newark, NJ I was the same towards their black/spanish cultural equivalents. The flags, the celebrity worship, the loud engines/music, the grouping up when you can't stand alone, etc. It is a behavior of a certain type of human. If something occurs 90% of the time, that is a thing. It doesn't stop becoming a thing just because your feelings and ego want others to pretend you aren't intellectually defective, so you can in your own mind, save some sort of face. Thugs on motorcycles in the hood eat at me as severely as rednecks in trucks in the area I now live. It isn't a color thing. I am not you, a kindergartner stuck on colors. There are white thugs in the hood and black rednecks in the country. It's rednecks/thugs that I don't like. It's loud, sharp, obnoxious, inharmonious, unnecessary sounds that send my body into instant anger. These things together are synergetically aggravating. I think police get too much garbage for profiling. It's like Dave Chapelle said with the dressing like a whore. Don't be surprised when humans act as you want them to with the presentation of yourself you give them. Humans see color first. When random test subjects were shown random pictures of different hands(of different colors) being injured, the brain lit up hard when it was the same race as the test subject, and much less with other races. The human mind is a categorical machine. It learns to navigate/manipulate its environment easier by categorizing something and moving on so that each thing that may fall into that category doesn't have to be investigated thoroughly each and every time. This works well with avoiding certain dangers, but when it applies it socially to humans(which it can't help) it becomes a problem.

Haxking():

This section is going to be short and concise not lengthy to sound pretentious or look like I am at university pining for professorial pats on the back.

Open Redirects():

`https://www.site.com/login?shopping_cart_url=xyz`

After that equals sign, xyz designates where it redirects to. If you can successfully change that cart url to one of your own with it redirecting, you can redirect people to your own site using the legitimacy of site.com or whatever site is. I also only used login and shopping_cart_url as example. It could be u= or gui= or fbcli= or url= or b= or anything else the developer chose.

This may fall more under HTTP Parameter Pollution but sometimes you may not even need to alter the shopping_cart_url but just add an additional shopping_cart_url tacked on to the end of it:

`https://www.site.com/login?
shopping_cart_url=xyz&shopping_cart_url=abc`

The last parameter being given precedence over the first.

Waste::Data Proves Your Daily Existence Is Garbage():

People pay billions annually to have body hair removed. People pay hundreds of billions for fast food, corporate garbage. People pay billions annually to play golf on land that could be used for farming/biofuel. People pay more money than you could fathom annually to watch rich people talk, gossip, play sports, etc.

I am going to break down a common blue collar job and show how it does NOT generate resources/sustenance/basic needs like they are conditioned to believe(and quickly regurgitate when you challenge them) but consumes and wastes them. I will also show how owning your own business isn't any better.

How many people do you know lay floors? Tile floors, carpet floors, subfloors, trim, linoleum, whatever. I don't know very many people but I know sumdemslaves. The ones helping build more empty homes when there are already more empty homes than homeless. The ones helping the wealthy get better floors instead of helping the poor get basic ones. The ones that drive around in their gas consuming, emitting, polluting, oil consuming, loud ass, redneck ass trucks citing work. Using the problem to justify continuing the problem? That irrational thought is more than common, it's rampant. It's a problem. So many people walking around doing destructive things thinking they are doing honorable things.

Real estate as a business is disgusting. Look specifically at the variables commb, commv, resb, & resv. Total commercial buildings, how many are empty, total residential buildings, how many are empty. Many of the floor layers are laying floors so that they can have a home. That is now how physics works but the economy makes people think there can be more than there was, as long as they do some manual labor for massa. If you do this one task over and over and over, magically everything else you could want appears. With everyone engaged in this bread and circuses ass existence, forced to justify an existence we didn't ask for, with manual labor making things no one needs, while we compete for basic needs...that is a perfect construct - if you are rich, on top, and you have the police to protect you from anyone you trample on daily. Politicians for example. Corporate executives. Celebrities. Masters.

The amount of land available for food, water, and shelter is more than enough for all species. Most of our food goes to the trash can or to feeding other food that doesn't need to be food. Let's throw in water with the food and show just how disgusting and conditioned people are. I use 3 gallons per day and that is with daily showers. It is about efficiency vs convenience. Look how many most people use, what alternatives there are, and what they choose instead:

It can cost from just under $1 to well over $2 to produce one cubic meter (264 gallons) of desalted water from the ocean. That's about as much as two people in the U.S. typically go through in a day at home.

There are people on this planet without clean, potable water yet many Americans find it in themselves to send a water back if it is too cold or if it is room temperature. All those bottles of water. More basic needs exploited by corporations. Building a hydro-corridor takes power and revenue from oil & gas corps - and hands it to CMP. We are constantly as a society forced between two options, both of which exploit the fuck out of us.

How Blue Collar Workers Destroy Resources():

1. Corporation X installs luxury floors. Corporation X founders do not want to do all that grueling, time consuming labor themselves. Founders find lower class people that need food, water, & shelter and offer them the bare minimum the state allows as compensation.

2. Lower class person finds basic needs accounted for plus an Xbox and can now ride to work in 'style'.

3. Corporation Y operates on the same premise but doesn't install floors, they process the lumber.

4. Corporation Z operates on the same premise but doesn't process the lumber, they rape the land for it.

5. Now there are three corporations that have a lot of lower/middle class people doing one task repetitively (cutting trees or laying floors in this case), providing them things their labor could never provide. They cannot walk outside, gather materials, and build an Xbox. If they could, they probably wouldn't be doing such a mindless thing as laying extra floors for wealthy people or destroying the place we all live just so they can live in excess. Being that humans in this society cannot exist without applying monetary value to things (!= means not equal to), look at it like this:

laying floors != heat + food + water + shelter + power + Xbox + TV + computers + vacuum + pet food + hygiene + medications + vehicle +

lawnmower + gas + oil + fast food + entertainment + all the parts, assembly processes, & ingredients

6. In our resource competition society, many others form their own competing corporations that undercut the other corporations. More things for less dollars. Consistently. The labor does not match the output and more importantly destroys quality of life for the individual while destroying resources. The law of conservation of mass is important here. There cannot be more than there was. Somehow though, the simpletons think that as long they do the manual labor for an authority, more resources are magically generated.

This is happening every single day. Right now. All kinds of garbage is being produced and constructed that are not necessary for existence, yet many on this planet are going without basic needs. This is not acceptable, yet the remedials are proud of it and defend it with their lives. Morpheus, Neo, the Woman In the Red Dress.

No Haxking():

I am done helping corporations exploit people, even for their little pats on the back. I have no intention of disclosing vulnerabilities so I am not going to look for them. The CFAA is absurd in many ways but you will still get booked. You may also receive diesel therapy depending on which boot ass enforcer's friend/family member you embarrassed for their nationalist garbage. Or just got in their feelings.

I am sticking to coding and writing. This way I can actually help resolve social issues instead of pretending I am by calling myself a White or Grey Hat.

Helping secure corporate infrastructure so that they can continue exploiting people is not resolving social issues.

Social Conditioning Through Media/Entertainment():

How many women have you heard say the tired, conditioned phrase, "I love a man in uniform"? I've heard it numerous times and read it on social media all the time. What is a man in uniform? A corporate/state slave. Someone that does usually unnecessary work for master to get basic needs (ncnnv08) so that the other may raise more corporate/state slaves to continue the current system where even knowledge is held hostage for manual labor. That phrase is in movies from the 30s, 40s, and 50s. Lot of women through the decades trying to mimic the plastic people on the television. Lots of women through the decades raising daughters to think the same. What is considered sexually attractive is often acquired socially. Then you have the males striving to be what is considered sexually attractive so that the female chooses them. They go fill out an application at the local precinct.

How much oppression, violence, and depravity because someone wanted to get some genitalia?

Here are some more examples of mating/courtship behaviors conditioned by media/entertainment(this doesn't mean the behavior started there):

- Holding the door for a woman instead of for everyone.
- Buying corporate garbage to show 'love'.
- Woman maintains relationship authority. The man grovels, begs, and pleads. Submissive instead of equal. Males that set boundaries are portrayed as selfish/dominant and selfish/dominant males are portrayed as bad humans.
- Women portrayed as staying home, cleaning, and managing the federal debt credits from her husband's labor.
- Anger is criminalized even though people who are victims of injustice are not emotionally content. They are angry and justifiably so. Tone policing is a form of obscene authority.

- State doctrine. "You are my heart but I would cut you out if you were a traitor!" Traitor is a word often used by wealthy authority to 'invalidate' legitimate challenges to their obscene authority in the eyes of their worshipers.

Social media is often 1984 thought policing. Many people spend their mental time in this virtual world. It is virtual but it is also reality. State officials, media mouths, police, killers, child predators, all real, all on social media. All saying things and posting pictures/videos. When you see information you don't want to accept do you say, "That event didn't happen because social media is not real"? If you do you're stupid. If you don't, you know someone that does. There are things that aren't real but not everyone processes mentally properly. I use the word properly loosely. I am not the thought police. I do see certain behavior/thought patterns that are destructive so I call people on them. I do not silence them, ban them, or force them. Corporations, states, and YOU do. Every. Single. Day. There are few people that have a completely empty block list on social media. I am taking a second to brag that I am one of them. I am standing on what is solid and I can verify & validate my social conclusions, so I do not need to silence others. I can also handle reading/watching things that I do not like. Freedom of speech means you also have to hear things you do not like. It does not just apply to you.

Fact-checkers existing all says the corporations think you are too stupid/lazy to think/research for yourself. It also says you need credentials to think for you which is how police get so much obscene authority. The media is the 4th branch of government. Picture the phone company in 1990's not liking what you and your friends talked about so they cancelled your service. That is social media today.

Turtles():

There is a severe issue on this planet. Abuse, neglect, and exploitation of animal life. In my area there are people that not only try to hit turtles but go across the oncoming lane and of road to hit nesting ones[https://www.instagram.com/p/C_gZa8_RmZX/]. They also run them over with ATVs[https://www.instagram.com/p/DE2_Lejxcc2/]. Equally disturbing are some of the comments on the videos. There are the obligatory "I have the mind of a middle-schooler" edgelords just saying things to get a reaction but there are many monsters in the comments. People that have absolutely ZERO concern for the suffering of other beings on this planet. They try to find any excuse to end the existence of another. Lots of "who cares, it's just a fucking turtle" comments. Lots of "they eat fish so sadism is acceptable" comments. Mostly there are comments calling me Casey Jones, Master Splinter, the Punisher, the "I like turtles" kid grown up, John Wick, etc. Without letting it swell my cranial, I have no issues admitting it boosts the self-esteem. It shows me 2 more things. 1) There are many more humans that value smaller life than I ever thought there were and 2) most people in this society are spectators. Easier to judge and gossip about another person acting, than act themselves. Hunters love deer and turkey. Well, they are primitive and have concern only for self. They rely on caveman thought, religious/nationalist doctrines, and social conformity as excuse to end the existence of another being when it is not actually necessary for survival[<https://www.youtube.com/shorts/G8JOULRUgKk>]. I am not got to end the existence of another so that I can survive another day or two. I will die first and let my animals consume me. Notice the excuses these rednecks use such as population control. Humans are the invasive species, they really shouldn't want to go down that route, but they fancy themselves 'real men' for, let's call it what it is: stalking. It isn't hunting. Daily, humans do depraved things to other life and each other, yet deer nibbling are the environmental issue. These rednecks love feigning concern for the environment when it permits them to kill. Most of them also buy meats at the store. Humans know what it is to suffer yet many treat other beings as if they don't feel pain, physical and mental.
